

MY MOM'S SURGERY

Praise God my mom's surgery to remove her tumor went well, although it was a very complicated surgery because the tumor was very stuck in her nerves. They weren't able to take out the entire tumor without damaging her nerves, but 90% was taken out and the doctor said the rest should take years to grow. Now she is home. Half her face is still paralyzed, and her eye bothers her a lot with sensitivity to light, but she has started to walk a little bit again so we are praising God. As she does physical therapy we see progress in her face too, but it is a very slow process so keep praying for her.

MINISTRIES

As you know I am mostly busy taking care of my mom and helping my dad with everything. This month I helped with Brother kids which is like a VBS, and then I have been busy investing in our English Club, and preparing for a huge conference for teenagers next month called Teen Street. I am going to be like a camp counselor for girls who want to practice their English. These girls sign up to do the whole week in English so pray for me that I can help them with speaking English and with growing closer to God. There will be around 1000-2000 teens there and it is hosted at a university here in Maringá.

TESTIMONIES

So many new people have been coming consistently to English Club. This week I had a great time reading the Bible in English to one of my friends who is learning English, and her face just lit up as we were reading and talking about it. She had so many questions and praise God He helped me give her the answers, and afterwards she thanked me for teaching her about Scripture, and said how she finds it hard to understand on her own.
